The Daily Gazetteer.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 28. 1743.

OBSERVATIONS on a Letter in the Daily-Post of the 20th of January, 1742. Addreſs'd to the Proprietors of the South-Sea Stock.

MR. Knight, till the Year 1720, was as generally eſteem'd as known; and if he fell in that Year, when ſo few ſtood, a good-natur'd Man would chuſe to recollect ſuch Circumſtances as might extenuate, (and many ſuch there [illegible]) rather than aggravate his Fault: But inſtead of this, the Writer of the Letter in the Daily Poſt of the 20th Inſtant, concluding Mr. Knight Guilty, from the Preambles of ſeveral Acts of Parliament (which have been thought by many unprejudiced Perſons very extraordinary, both in the Matter and Manner of paſſing them,) has aſſerted, that Mr. Knight ſtands thereby charged as indebted to the Company in no leſs a Sum than 860,000 l.

If Truth would ſerve the Turn, every Man would uſe it when it will not, ſome Perſons are not over-jealous in the Choice of Means, even when they are charging others for want of Honeſty. If the Letter-Writer could make the Proprietors believe, that Mr. Knight was really Debtor to the Company, in ſo great a Sum as 860,000 l. this, beſides the Tendency it would have to inflame the Proprietors againſt him, would lead them to think, that a great Part of that Sum may probably remain in his Hands; and conſequently to look upon any Relief he may offer as a Trifle: Whereas, had the Writer informed the Proprietors (as the Fact is) that in an Act of Parliament (amongſt other Things) for Payment of Mr. Knight's Creditors, (which Payment was obſtructed by the Company's Claim) this great Sum was mentioned, barely as a Claim entered before the Truſtees, and that this Claim had not been proſecuted; and at the ſame time had told them, that 700,000 l. of it aroſe, not from Money received by Mr. Knight, but, on the contrary, from the Subſcribers to the third and fourth Subſcription having refuſed to pay their Subſcription-Money; and that this Deficiency had been reported to the Directors in the beginning of Auguſt 1720; and that the Reſiduo of the 860,000 l. had been ſatisfy'd by Mr. Knight's Eſtates veſted in the Truſtees, which had yielded to the Company about 190,000 l. after Payment of the Company, and all other Creditors; theſe Truths would not have anſwered the Writer's End, and were therefore (to ſay no worſe of the Letter) omitted.

It is likewiſe affirmed in the Letter, that Mr. Knight had lent ſeveral 100,000 l. of the Company's Money, which may be loſt for want of his Evidence. If this Fact is true, 'tis ſtrange that it ſhould be known only to the Writer of this Letter; and before it is believed, ſome better Evidence of it will be expected, than the bare Aſſertion of one, who does not appear to be very cautious in affirming Facts.

The introducing the Caſe of Mr. Waite with the Bank on this Occaſion, could proceed from nothing but the Pleaſure of making an ill-natured Compariſon; which the Writer would ſurely have deny'd himſelf, had he conſider'd the Difference between the two Caſes: Mr. Waite is ſuppoſed to have carry'd off what he was intruſted with; Mr. Knight, when he left the Kingdom, had in his Cuſtody upwards of 260,000 l. of the Company's Funds, and in his Power near 200,000 l. of the Company's Caſh; all which he deſignedly left behind him, from a Principle of Honour and Integrity, for the Company's Uſe, inſtead of taking them away as the Means of making his Peace: Perhaps the Writer of the Letter, rather than not find fault, may blame Mr. Knight's Conduct in this Particular.

Conſidering the malicious Spirit which appears throughout this Letter, and another in the Daily Poſt of the 24th Inſtant, (which is probably the Work of the ſame delicate Hand) it may be thought unneceſſary to have taken any Notice of either; but leſt any Perſons ſhould think it impoſſible for any Man, how eſtabliſhed ſoever his Character may be for Ill-Nature, and the want of Decency, to miſrepreſent Facts in ſo groſs a manner, it was thought proper, for the ſake of Truth and Juſtice, to make theſe few Obſervations.

The Letter ſpares nobody. The Writer not contented with miſrepreſenting Mr. Knight's Caſe, has inſinuated, in a manner eaſily underſtood, and deſigned to be ſo, many ſcandalous and groundleſs Reflections on Perſons of the higheſt Rank; and has treated the Directors, (whoſe paſt Conduct fully juſtifies the Proprietors Choice of them) in ſuch a Manner, that if the Proprietors in general were to imitate his Example, none but Knaves or Fools would accept of ſuch a Truſt.

Yeſterday arriv'd a Mail from France.

Rome, Jan. 12.

THE Duke de Gravina attends regularly as Prince-Aſſiſtant to the Throne. On the 7th a Turkiſh Woman, of the Age of 42, was publickly baptized at the Church of our Holy Saviour. We have juſt received the News of the Death of Cardinal Cibo; he had been long afflicted with a kind of Hypocondraic Melancholy, but he died of the Gout in his Stomach. As there are now 15 Hats fallen, it is expected the Sovereign Pontiff [illegible] ſpeedily diſpoſe of them, and it is even pretended, that a Liſt has been already form'd; but this is look'd upon as a Court Contrivance, calculated to ſerve certain Purpoſes. The Cardinals Fleury and Tencin have written lately to his Holineſs, entreating him to employ his Intereſt with the Queen of Hungary, in order to perſuade her to make a Peace; which is look'd upon there as a Proof of the low State of France, ſince that Court never applies to this, but when it feels a Weakneſs both in its Head and its Hands.

Naples, Jan. 8. The laſt Day of the old Year, the Engliſh Man of War, that has been ſo often mentioned, ſailed out of the Port into the Road, under a Salvo of all the Artillery mounted in the New Caſtle, and of 27 Pieces of heavy Cannon from the Battery adjoining. This was ſuppoſed to be a Mark of the Court's Joy for being fairly rid of this Gueſt. But on the Morrow, being New Year's Day, 8 Men of War, and 4 Bomb Veſſels of the ſame Nation, appeared at the Mouth of the Harbour. The Approach of this Squadron has thrown the whole City into a grievous Conſternation; the Court has given all the Orders proper for putting every thing in the beſt Condition of Defence that may be, and has brought abundance of regular Troops into the City; but inſtead of calming our Surprize, this has increaſed it. The Court has given ſtrict Orders, that no body ſhould write this News abroad, and it is ſaid, will ſtop all the ſubſequent Poſts till this Squadron ſhall be departed.

Hamburgh, Jan. 27. Our laſt Advices from Sweden are of the 18th, and from them we learn, that Things are going there into their old Chanel; that is to ſay, the French, by pretending to change their Schemes, will ſtill have the Management of the popular Party. Col. Freudenfeld, who commands on the Frontiers of Finland, having beat a ſmall Party of Ruſſians, has written a Letter there in a ſtrange bombaſt Style, in which he gives the World to underſtand, that with a little Aſſiſtance, and a reaſonable Supply of Artillery and Ammunition, he ſhould be able to penetrate into, and regain that Duchy; which Gaſconade has been ſo well reliſhed by the People, that Orders have been given to ſupply him with all he asks; ſo that the Swediſh Patriots are for proſecuting the Authors of the War in the Diet, and, at the ſame time, for proſecuting their Meaſures in the Field.

Franckfort, Jan. 27. We have Private Advices from Bohemia, that many of the Nobility there are under terrible Apprehenſions of the Commiſſion of Enquiry, lately granted by the Queen of Hungary, on account of their having maintain'd a ſecret Correſpondence with his Imperial Majeſty, long before his Troops enter'd that Kingdom. What makes them moſt uneaſy is, their knowing that the Bulk of the Nation are zealouſly loyal to the Houſe of Auſtria, and their Apprehenſion that her Hungarian Majeſty will incline to reward this Diſpoſition in the Populace at their Expence, by cancelling the old Tenures, and extinguiſhing that State of Vaſſalage, which has been ſo long complain'd of in Bohemia. There are daily very large Remittances made hither, and even vaſt Sums conveyed in Specie, which we ſuppoſe are the Subſidies granted to his Imperial Majeſty by a certain Potentate, to encourage and enable him to return into his own Dominions. Fifteen Carriages laden with the moſt valuable Part of his Imperial Majeſty's Furniture, ſet out from hence Yeſterday for Munich. We have ſent within theſe few Days into Bavaria upwards of 15,000 Pair of Shoes, for the Service of the Troops there, and as many more are beſpoke. It is currently reported, that the Emperor will depart in a Fortnight; but as Things ſtand at preſent, it is not very likely, ſince the Auſtrian Huſſars have lately appeared within Sight of his Capital.

Duſſeldorp, Jan. 28. Things are already very much chang'd ſince the Death of our Elector, and Yeſterday there arrived three Reſcripts, which will have a ſtill ſtronger Effect. By the Firſt, the War-Office, and all the Petty Officers therein are diſmiſſed, as are likewiſe the Clerks of the Treaſury; the Second cancels all Patents either for Penſions or Survivances; the Third directs a Reinforcement of 800 Men to be ſent to the Garriſon of Juliers; which we take to be by way of Precaution, on account of the March of Foreign Troops thro' that Duchy in the Way to the Auſtrian Netherlands. The Elector of Cologne is gone to the Imperial Court, with intent, as it is ſaid, to perſwade his Brother to reliſh with his preſent Meaſures, and to place an entire Confidence in the Kings of Great Britain and Pruſſia; from a Foreſight that if this Step be not taken, the Queen of Hungary may much ſooner find an Equivalent for Pruſſia, than his Imperial Majeſty any Satisfaction for the Pretenſions.

Extract of a Private Letter.

Paris, Jan. 29. 'The following Particulars relating 'to the Illneſs of Cardinal Fleury are curious, and may 'be depended upon.

'On Friday, the 18th, his Valet de Chambre aſked his 'Eminence pretty early in the Morning, whether he 'would not take a little Cinnamon Water; he anſwered, 'no; but a Moment after calling him back, Give me, 'ſays he, ſome Cinnamon Water, it comes from my 'good Friends the Dutch, and I would not willingly 'diſoblige them. All that Day he was better, that is to 'ſay, without the leaſt Fever, his Head clear, and his 'Stomach undiſturbed; and thus he continued all 'Night.

'Saturday, the 19th, his Throat began to ſwell ſo 'much, that he was not able to take down either Meat 'or Drink. Several of the Miniſtry came to Iſſy about 'Noon, but did not ſee his Eminence, becauſe they 'would not diſturb him. His Majeſty came about Three, 'and ſtaid, as at his laſt Viſit, ſomewhat more than half 'an Hour. His Eminence paſs'd the Night pretty well, 'and ſlept a good deal.

'Sunday, the 20th, he call'd for Chocolate pretty 'early, but could not ſwallow it; bating this, he ſeem'd 'to be pretty well. It was amazing to ſee a Perſon live, 'and keep up his Spirits, without taking any ſort of 'Nutriment; yet no Alteration was obſerved that Day, 'and in the Evening he went to Bed in the ſame ſad 'State, without taking any Thing wet or dry.

'Monday, the 21ſt, he ſpit all Day long; what he 'brought up was thick, and difficult to expectorate; he 'had a Cough, but it was very far from being trouble-'ſome; he ſlept very little that Night, and his Diffi-'culty of ſwallowing increaſed. Yet, in the midſt of 'all this Miſery, his Eminence maintain'd that Evenneſs 'of Temper, and Conſtancy of Mind, for which he was 'always remarkable.

'Tueſday, the 22d, when a Clergyman, whoſe Name 'was Caſegrin, told him he had not long to live, he was 'not at all diſcompos'd; he only ſaid, "Mr. Demoulin '(who was his Phyſician) "told me nothing of this; to "be ſure he thought I was afraid of Death, but cer-"tainly he does not know me."

'Wedneſday, the 23d, they open'd the Tumour upon 'his Throat, after which his Eminence drank a little 'Aſſes Milk, and was much better, but in the Evening 'he grew worſe again.'

Extract from the Paris Alamain.

Feb. 1, 1743. 'Cardinal Fleury, our firſt Miniſter of 'State, died at Iſſy, on the 29th of laſt Month, about 'Noon, aged 89. He poſſeſs'd the Place of great Almoner to the Queen, &c. and is univerſally regretted.

'M. Gabriel, the King's firſt Architect, is come hi-'ther from Verſailles, by order of the Court, to finiſh, 'with all ſpeed, the Church of St. Lewis of the Louvre, 'where the Cardinal is to be buried; his Body, in the 'mean time, will remain in the Ghurch of Iſſy.

'The King has given the Almonerſhip to the Queen, 'to the Archbiſhop of Roan, and that of his firſt Almoner, which this Prelate had before, to the Abbey 'de Fleury, Grand-Nephew to the late Cardinal.

'When the Miniſters inform'd his Majeſty that the 'Cardinal was dead, his Majeſty teſtified a great Con-'cern for the Loſs of ſo uſeful a Subject; but at the 'ſame time declared, that he would for the future have 'no Prime Miniſter.

'The Abbe Briſſart, and the Comptroller-General of 'the Finances, are his Eminency's Executors.

'The Army of the Marſhal Belleiſle is in full March, 'in order to take Winter-Quarters in Franche Conte.'

LONDON.

Letters from Geneva advise, That the General Council have agreed to receive into the Town 600 Men of the Canton of Bern, and 200 of Zurich, in order the better to secure the Place against any Surprize; and that the Spaniards began to spread themselves into the Focigny and Chablais, situate along the Banks of the Lake, where Don Philip is shortly expected. The same Letters assure us, That that Prince having demanded of the small Republick of Walisland, or Vallais, a Passage for his Troops thro' their Territory into the Milanese, the Senate had met to consider of it, and had refused to comply with his Demand, and were arming with all Diligence to oppose the Spaniards, in case they should attempt to force a Passage; and that a large Body of the Militia of the Canton of Bern were in full March towards the River Rhone, in order to assist that little Republick, with which they are in Alliance.

The Worcester Man of War, Capt. Cleland, is arrived at St. Helens from Jamaica.
